Statement of historical significance and description of property:

B94.1

Sited back from West 2nd Avenue on a rise, and accessed by a circular drive, this two story Colonial Revival style house with rectangular massing faces south. Its medium gable roof is sheathed in metal roofing material and has close eaves except in front, where it extends to form a full-length porch on two-story boxed columns. A balustrade with stick cross motif extends across the face over the entablature. The main façade is bilaterally symmetrical, with three bays. The six-paneled door has sidelights and a broken or swan's neck pediment. Lower story windows are 8/8 double hung with shutters. A circular window is centered over the door. The house is on a concrete foundation and has weatherboard siding. A one and one half story wing projects from the east flush with the north side of the house.

Dr. Skelly lived here with his family in the 1950's and 1960's.

The 1928 Sanborn map shows a structure on the site of this house, but because it is on the edge of the map, it is difficult to discern if it is the same structure.
